MORATORIUM TO PASS HOUSE AT NIGHT SESSION?

Leader Snell; four ranking members of the Ways and Means committee, Chairman Collier, Crisp, Dem. Ga.; Hawley Repr., Ore.; and Treadway, Repr., Mass., four ranking members of the Banking and Currency committee, Chairman Steagall, Brand, Dem. Ga.; Strong, Repr., Kan., and Lane, Repr., Mass., Under Secretary of Treasury Mills and Newton.
The foreign debt moratorium came before the House for ratification, in a bill that definitely and unequivocally would put Congress on record against further reductions or cancellation.
By passing the measure, and this is expected after some delay and a shower of critical debate, Congress will give President Hoover authority to postpone for one year the debt payments that already have been waived, but will emphatically serve notice it will tolerate nothing further.

Reservation Included

The stinger in the bill, constituting a rebuke for the President's negotiations looking toward war debt revision, was inserted by the Ways and Means committee before it formally approved the measure last night and dispatched it to the House for action. This reservation, offered by Rep. Ragon, Dem., Ark., reads:
"It is hereby expressly declared to be against the policy of congress that any of the indebtedness of foreign countries to the United States should be in any manner cancelled or reduced, and nothing in this joint resolution shall be construed as indicating a contrary policy, or as implying favorable consideration will be given at any time to a change in the policy hereby declared."

This reservation was adopted, 16 to 9, over the protests of Secretary of State Stimson and Undersecretary Mills, who were closeted with the committee for a part of the five-hour secret session. The 15 Democrats on the committee and one Republican, Rep. Crowther, New York, supported it, with nine Republicans against. The resolution then was ordered favorably reported by a vote of 21 to 4. The four who voted "no" were all Democrats.
The reservation was the outgrowth of rapidly crystallizing opinion in Congress, whether justified or not, that President Hoover planned to reopen the whole war-debt question. This opinion was strengthened when he recently recommended recreation of the World War Debt Funding Commission.

NO RANSOM IS PAID, POLICE CHIEF STATES

kidnapers entered the Donnelly car and the third drove away in the other car.
The kidnapers traveled some distance to the southwest.
Once Mrs. Donnelly tried to escape. She pulled the sack from her head and tried to scream to passing motorists.
One of the men clapped his hand roughly over her mouth, bruising her and drawing blood.
Finally the car stopped, Mrs. Donnelly and the Negro were ordered out and taken into a house.
The Negro was locked in one room and Mrs. Donnelly in another.
The attractive business woman was not bound or gagged, but the Negro was.

Prison In Country

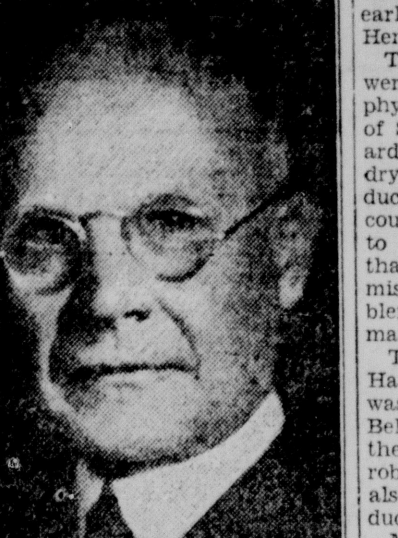

Mrs. Donnelly said their prison was a small house in the country. She said she heard chickens and cows.
Milk was brought to her at regular intervals, but she was given no other food.
"I lay down on the bed several times, but I couldn't go to sleep," Mrs. Donnelly said. "It was so filthy that I just couldn't shut my eyes."
Two or three times, her captors asked Mrs. Donnelly what she wanted to eat, and she ordered a big meal, which, however, never materialized.
A radio was kept going most of the time. Over it Mrs. Donnelly heard word of her kidnaping broadcast.
During the trip the party transferred from the Donnelly car to another one.
"It ran like a ratty old machine of some sort," Mrs. Donnelly said. She said she did not see more than three men at a time but from their voices she thought there might have been four or five in the crowd.

Had Made Mistake

One of the men spoke with a marked foreign accent, according to Mrs. Donnelly. She believed one of them was an Italian.
Soon after the party reached the house, the kidnapers asked Mrs. Donnelly if she would write a letter to her husband.
"I guess there's nothing else to do," she replied.
"That ought to give 'em a scare," said one of the men after Mrs. Donnelly had written the note.
No further reference was made to the threat Mrs. Donnelly said. When the kidnapers seized her, Mrs. Donnelly protested that she

Bank Bookkeeper Is Kidnaped By Thugs

Mt. Summit, Ind., Dec. 18—(AP)—Four men robbed the Mt. Summit State Bank today and kidnaped Miss India Province, bookkeeper, to use her as a shield against the gunfire of vigilantes summoned by a burglar alarm.
The robbers obtained approximately $2,000. Miss Province was carried about 15 miles in the bandit car and was finally released unharmed near Daleville.
Officers believed the robbers headed south toward Cincinnati. Several shots were fired at them by vigilantes.
By the time she reached headquarters, she was composed, and her first thought was of her appearance.

TODAY
TRITE old adage, yet still as true.
For counsel as when the thought was new.
A little rhyme with a short refrain
That sings its wisdom over again,
With clearness that brooks of no delay,
Is sweetly urging, "Be glad today."
Persuasively rousing to near delight,
Revealing pleasure, deemed out of sight!
It bans our protests, ignores our fears,
Persistently urging smiles for tears.
It gayly chases dull care away
With gentle advice, "Be glad today."
The world's counselor has never said,
"Tomorrow's give us our daily bread."
With love's bright visions he wisely taught—Tomorrows need claim no anxious thought,
Today holds all that Love has planned;
Unfearing, blithe, meet its demand:
"Be glad today."

Holiday Fair Is a Great Success, Today and Tomorrow; See It

The Holiday Fair, sponsored by the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, opened yesterday in the Warner building, 108 E. First street, formerly occupied by the Fallstrom Flower Shop, and patronized by many Dixon merchants is proving most enjoyable and successful, a good crowd attending last evening. Admission to the fair is by a silver coin, or a jar or can of fruit, vegetables or jelly, and this to be devoted to charity.
The interior of the building has been attractively decorated in the spirit of the holiday season and the space has been separated into booths occupied by the displays of the different merchants. The display windows have dishes of appetizing food, pretty home made fancy articles, etc. The following merchants have booths: Walter Cromwell Electric Shop; Dixon Grocery & Market; Vaile & O'Malley clothing; Fallstrom Florist; Blackhawk Produce Co.; Hartzell's Meat Market; I. N. U. Co.; Mellott's Furniture; Kennedy Music Co.; and the Silver Crescent Restaurant.

W. H. M. S. Christmas Meeting, Mrs. Bills

The M. E. Woman's Home Missionary Society held a very interesting Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. H. D. Bills Thursday, Dec. 17. Meeting opened by the singing of hymn, "Joy to the World," which followed the devotionals lead by Mrs. Brewster, 1st Scripture reading taken from 4th Chapter of Micah 1 to 4 verses. Christmas Kingdom prophesied, 2nd Scripture reading taken from Isaiah 9th Chapter verses 6 and 7. Fortelling of Christ's birth, "For unto you us a child is born, unto us a child is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful Counselor." The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

The routine of business was transacted, and reports from the different officers given Mrs. Bills read articles out of the Missionary Bulletin, the doings of the conference and the call for needs in clothing and food from all parts were more numerous than ever before.
Three new members were reported joining the society. The Christmas offering taken for Peek's Orphanage was $10.45 to be used as the matron would advise, to purchase for gifts for children. The program was in charge of Mrs. Helmick. A playlet, "Home Mission Challenge—Now and Then" was given by Mrs. E. J. Brown, Mrs. E. J. Randall, Mrs. Winnebrenner, A duet by Mrs. Millford and Mrs. Gebhardt, "Little Town of Bethlehem" This was followed by a Christmas playlet, entitled "The Radio Speaks" demonstrated and acted out by the following persons: Mrs. Cadle, Mrs. Millford, Mrs. Winnebrenner, Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Frey, Mrs. Peterson and Miss Callie Morgan. After this "Silent Night" was sung by Mrs. Millford and Mrs. Gebhardt. Mrs. Bills closed the meeting by a prayer. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Henry Photo and committee, there being forty-three present at this meeting.

Bridge Dinner an Enjoyable Affair

Last evening Sheriff and Mrs. Fred Richardson entertained at one of the most delightful parties of the season, at the Hotel Dixon. A beautifully appointed dinner was followed by an evening of bridge, there being guests for five tables. Decorations in yellow and green were exceptionally attractive. Yellow chrysanthemums were the flowers employed.

The favor for high honors at bridge was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rosecrans. The favor for second high score was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Lee Read and consolation favor was presented Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Jensen.

Crisis in Illness Of Pola Negri Soon

Santa Monica, Calif., Dec. 18—(AP)—A rising temperature marked the condition of Pola Negri, film actress today but her physicians said they were not alarmed.
They said it was a reaction to an operation for the removal of an intestinal obstruction she underwent Wednesday. A crisis is expected within the next 72 hours.
One blood transfusion has been resorted to in an effort to save the life of the actress, and it is likely, her physicians stated, that another may be made.

Battle of Twenty-five Years Goes On

DISARMING THE WORLD.

When Senator Borah broadcast to Europe the flat assertion that failure to disarm is a direct slap in the face for the Versailles treaty, he touched on a point that ought to get a lot more attention than it does.

Under that treaty, if you remember, Germany was almost completely disarmed. Stripped of her submarines and her air force and forbidden to replace these losses, limited to a third-rate navy and an army of 100,000 men, Germany ceased, in the strict military meaning of the expression, to be a "great power."

That, of course, was simply part of the program laid down by the victors. But the treaty added that all of this was to be a preliminary to general disarmament all around. Germany must disarm first, but her conquerors would follow suit in the immediate future.

But today, as Senator Borah points out, nearly $5,000,000,000 a year is being spent on armaments. The Versailles treaty disarmament clause has simply been ignored.

Yet Senator Borah's speech was not any more instructive than the way in which it was received.

There were two meetings in Paris that night; one to hear speeches in favor of disarmament, and the other to protest against the first meeting. The disarmament meeting dissolved in catcalls and sporadic fistuffs; the second meeting proceeded in an orderly manner.

Alanson B. Houghton was unable to make his speech at all. Former Premier Herriot voiced a rather obvious truth in stating that "the spirit must prevail over the brute forces of the world" and was greeted with a cry of "Nonsense!" from young men in front of him—which indicates the high plane which can motivate the foes of armament reduction.

All of this indicates rather clearly the exceedingly tough row that advocates of world peace have to hoe. Logic and reason may be on their side. They may have the solemn pledge of the Versailles treaty in their favor. But they are up against an angry passion that will not listen to them. The prospects is extremely discouraging.

GIVING FOR CHARITY.

Community chest campaigns in 154 cities of the United States this fall have netted a grand total of more than $63,000,000, according to reports made to the president's unemployment committee.

This result is gratifying. It indicates that the American people are not only willing to give to relieve distress—they are still able to give, in spite of the business depression.

But no one should grow too complacent about it. After all, there are, by the most conservative estimates, 6,000,000 men out of work. These community chest contributions, then, come to about $10 apiece for all of the jobless. It was a fine thing to raise so much money by voluntary contributions; but no one need think that we can sit back now and forget all about the needs of the poverty-stricken. What we have done was only, after all, the very least we could do.

In Italy the signs say: "Passeggiata e proibito"; in France, "C'est defendu"; in England, "Trespassers will be prosecuted." But here (in America) the signs say, "Please give the grass a chance." Beautiful! Beautiful!—Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy.

It is now possible to measure energy put into noise. If 1,500,000 people talked 12 months the energy of the sound would be equal to that required to boil water for a cup of tea.—Sir William Bragg, English Physicist.

University clubs are those bright centers of intellectual life where the alumni cluster around the radio and hang on the words of the football announcer.—Gordon J. Long, Professor of Chicago University.

We have had to shoulder the war debts—because we borrowed and still owe every dollar we loaned Europe.—Senator R. B. Howell of Nebraska.

I want this matter of my sex life settled now until I die. I am thoroughly impotent.—Theodore Dreiser, Author recently indicted in Kentucky.

A successful writer might in walking down the street easily be mistaken for a plumber.—Sinclair Lewis, Successful American Writer.

The supreme cause of our confusion is our contemptuous dismissal of ethics.—Dr. Charles A. Beard, Historian.

A man who can hold his tongue can hold anything, even a bishopric.—Dean Inge of St. Paul's, London.

If you want to make a lion or elephant wild—shoot at him.—Caraveth Wells, Author and Adventurer.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The dog that got soaked with the dash of water didn't like the splash. He started for the dog that soaked him, mad as he could be. Said Clowdy, "This will be all right. I guess we're going to see a fight. I think that will be thrilling, if they do not pick on me."

But what he thought would happen was a very sad mistake because the dogs were only playing, just to make the big crowd cheer. Said Scouty, "There will be no fight and everything will turn out right. You always are too anxious for a free-for-all, I fear."

Just then a big horn tooted loud and quite surprised the circus crowd. "Say, what was that for?" Clowdy asked. "Perhaps the show is over." A dog that sat right by his side, looked up at Clowdy and replied, "I'm sorry, but you're wrong again. We're going to see some more."

And, sure enough, into the tent some monkeys ran and promptly went up to some swinging trapeze bars. "We're going to swing," cried one. "You'll see some action that is great. Just hold your seats and kindly wait. Whatever happens it will be an awful lot of fun."

Then up on to the rings they went. Of course, a little time was spent in swinging back and forth until they worked up real good speed. One monkey they whirled 'round and 'round. The other caught him, safe and sound. "That's hard to do," said Scouty. "Lots of nerve is what you need."

The smallest monkey in the bunch soon had a very funny hunch. The ring that he was holding to, away up high, had stopped. The Tinsies heard him shout, "Oh! Just watch me now and I'll let go." And then he whizzed down through the air and in a net he flopped.

LONDON RAIDED

On Dec. 18, 1917, London was raided by German airplanes operating from bases in Belgium.

Ten persons were killed and 70 injured by bombs from the German planes.

One airplane was brought down by British anti-aircraft guns and another was believed to have fallen into the sea.

A Union government was elected in Canada and voter confirmed Canadian conscription laws.

In Asia Minor, British troops seized the heights above Abu Dis, driving back Turkish troops.

Did you ever stop to think
EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

M. McIntyre Hood, editor of the Oshawa (Ontario) Daily Times, says:

That the best advertising which any city or town can have is found in the manner in which its citizens speak of it when they are away from home.

How often we find men and women, who, when visiting elsewhere, are prone to criticize their own city to others. They declare it to be dead, that it has few attractions, and that they would not live in it if they could find employment and a chance to live elsewhere.

These men and women may not realize it, but in condemning their own city, they are condemning themselves. No city can be any better or greater than the people who live in it. If they are dead, the city will be dead. If they do the bit to make it more attractive, the bit will never be attractive.

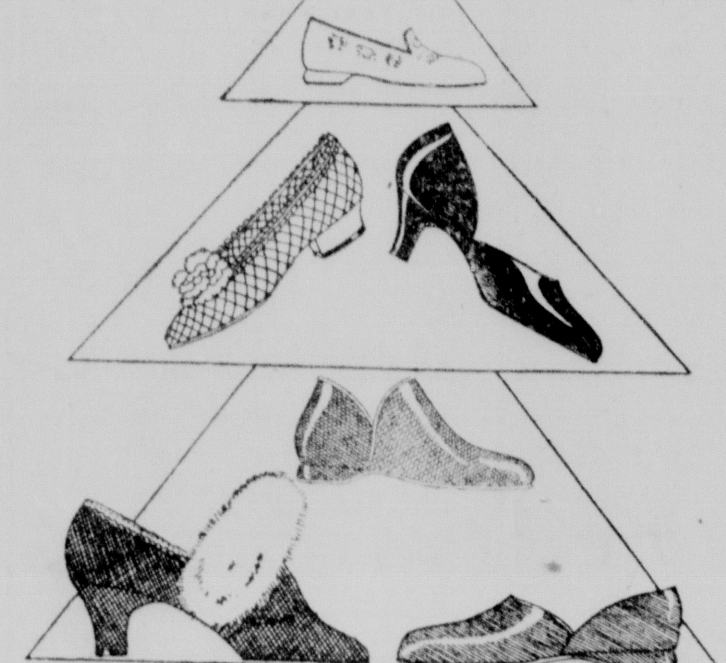

Men and women who earn their living in a city should be loyal to that city. Their loyalty will help it to grow, will help it to be more attractive. After all, it is that loyalty in individuals, multiplied thousands of times over, that makes the kind of community spirit which makes some cities stand out as superior to all others.

If I were asked to name some of the attributes of good citizenship, I could place loyalty to the home city in the forefront. And one of the finest ways in which to express that loyalty is found in taking every opportunity to boost the home city, to tell the world that it is the finest place on earth. If every citizen made a habit of practicing civic loyalty in this way, then your city would soon become as good a place to live in as you say it is.

Wild Duck Profit

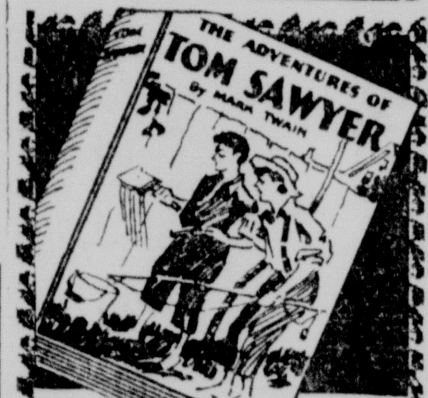

In Nature's Breaks

Washington (UP)—Wild ducks finally got the "breaks" this year, the game experts of the Biological Survey report. The total duck kill, due first to the shortened season and second to unseasonably good weather, will be less than a third of past years, the survey estimates.

When it was found last summer that the great prairie breeding grounds in Canada were so dry, due to a two year drought, that the duck "crop" would be the smallest in years, the usual three months season was cut to one month. The season will be over in all parts of the country by December 20. But even then the game conservationists believed that the duck hunters would concentrate their efforts. Instead, the good weather has been such that ducks are hard to get and the average kills have been small.

It has been unofficially estimated that from 12,000,000 to 18,000,000 wild ducks are killed by American hunters in a normal year. On this basis, the survey believes that the 1931 kill will be found to come under 7,000,000—perhaps well under.

Maggots Hope For Life Of Nebraskan

Fremont, Neb.—(UP)—Maggots hold the hope for life for Hugh Kuhtnick of North Bend.

Kuhtnick is suffering from osteomyelitis, an infection of the bones. Because of the centering of the infection in the bones of his skull and jaw, his case was regarded as extremely dangerous.

All treatments failed to check the infection. Finally his case was called to the attention of Dr. C. G. Moore, of Fremont. Moore, suggested a treatment discovered during the World War, used successfully in Europe and recently introduced into the United States—the use of maggots.

The maggots were ordered from a New York laboratory. They were applied to the infected area. Now Kuhtnick's condition is much improved. Whereas doctors had recently held little hope for his recovery, he is now assured he is likely to recover his health.

The case is believed by Dr. Moore to be the first on record in which the treatment has been used for an infection of the bones of the head.

As explained by Dr. Moore, it has been found that the tiny white grubs feed upon the infected flesh, leaving the tissues clean and enabling nature to heal the wound.

VAILE AND O'MALLEY

Value—Quality—Variety

by Florence Harris Wells

BOB PARSELL, home from college for the holidays, entered one of the rear pews of the great cathedral and settled himself with a satisfied air of expectancy.

Bob had always wanted to attend one of these midnight services and at last he had made it possible—forced the issue as it were. Bob looked about him.

There was Mary, the Mother of Jesus, bending over the babe. Not far away was Joseph, the father. Mary's expression made him think of his own mother, when she and dad started off in the car for the hundred-mile drive to his unmarried aunt's home at Wakefield. Dad had said:

"Too bad your holiday job keeps you from driving with us, Bob. But I'll meet you at the station in the morning."

And mother, understanding her son a little better than father, had said:

"You won't miss the midnight train, will you, Bob? It would spoil Christmas not to have you with us, you know."

And he, Bob, had said: "All right," not knowing himself just what he meant by it. And he felt sure mother didn't either.

But after they had gone he became more and more positive he was not going to Wakefield. Christmas was meant to be a happy time and he had been away from home all the year and besides he wanted to go to the tea dance Christmas afternoon with Margaret. Of course he knew mother would have had the Christmas at home if she had been able, but she hadn't gotten over that operation yet.

The manager of the store had told Bob to go but Bob seized upon the excuse to work until the store closed at eleven. He was going to do as he pleased. Christmas was the time to be happy.

But when he called Margaret she was going away with her parents for Christmas. That in itself was disappointing but he would see what the midnight service was like anyway. But he wasn't a bit comfortable. Mary looking at that Christ child the way she did began to annoy him. It was too much like mother's look—and mother wasn't well.

"Oh, hang it all!" Bob muttered. "Why can't a fellow do what he wants and be happy?" He seized his coat and dashed out.

There was just time to catch the twelve-fifteen. No use taking a sleeper. Bob entered the coach with its nodding occupants. But who were those wide-awake people a few seats down?

"Margaret! For Pete's sake! Where're you going?" Bob's exclamation roused several of the sleepers.

"Why, we're going to Wakefield. Dad's people live there and we go there occasionally for Christmas. This happens to be one of the occasions."

"Well, I'm more lucky than I deserve," Bob laughed a little awkwardly. "That's where I'm going. Do you suppose there'll be any kind of a dance?"

"I know there is. I was wondering who I'd go with, but now I know."

"Yes, you can know that for sure," Bob grinned.

Bob was philosophizing to himself as he dressed for breakfast:

"I sure would have been a cad to have stayed at home. Dad at the train to meet me and mother up waiting, so relieved and happy when I arrived. And a date with Margaret for good measure. Gee! Wouldn't I have been sore at myself at home? Christmas happiness means thinking of others besides ourselves, I'm convinced."

EXPERTS AGREED BRIDGE TOURNEY ISN'T FAIR TEST

Culbertson With A New Partner Further
Ahead Today

By H. ALLEN SMITH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Dec. 18.—(UP)—A lean young man by the name of Theodore Lightner, who can sniff his nose and make it sound like a personal insult, joined forces with Ely Culbertson last night in the Culbertson-Lenz contract bridge squabble and practically proved the ruin of Sidney Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.

Lightner, a young man of about 34, with glasses which set way up on his nose, succeeded Mrs. Jo Culbertson as Ely's partner. By the time the match was through with his fancy bidding the Culbertson team was 4,936 points ahead. And they played only six rubbers last night. Playway!

Mrs. Culbertson, who left the contest simply because Christmas is drawing nigh, and little Pili and Jump-Bid Bruce are expecting a lot of thingamajigs from Santa Claus, took up her post in the press room for the evening.

Mrs. Culbertson's presence in the press room made it very difficult for the newspapermen, phoning in results to say such things as, "the Culbertsons are bidding like fools," or "Ely is acting like a dog in the manger."

Lightner was every bit as spectacular as Jacoby. Jacoby has startled spectators by his dramatic bidding. He even startled his own partner last night.

Lenz Exasperated
Lenz got so exasperated with Jacoby's bidding, when Ozzie deliberately pushed up a six no-trump bid of Lenz to a seven heart bid, and went sunk one trick, that he called for a conference between the pitcher's box and the home plate.

Sidney Lenz was just plain out-and-out mad. After that rubber was over he says to Ozzie:

"Ozzie, come out here a minute."

Sidney and Ozzie left the room for the first time since the match started the first time Sidney Lenz became so excited that he has left his chair.

It was the first huddle since the contest started and it excited a great deal of comment. Their conference lasted about five minutes.

When they came out it was apparent that they did not want anybody to know what they had been talking about. But Sidney Lenz inadvertently gave it away.

"Ozzie," said Sidney, and your correspondent was standing right at his elbow. "Ozzie, you understand what I mean, don't you?"

"Sure," said Ozzie, then they went back to work.

Nobody could doubt that Lenz was explaining about Ozzie's bidding. The quarrelling brought a statement from Culbertson which said in part:

No Test of Systems

"Another session like last night and Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby will acquire a reputation of being the world's worst losers."

To which Lenz replied:

"Mr. Lightner played a very good game of cards. Considering the fact that Culbertson was out of the room three-fourths of the time talking to the press, he also did very well. When Heywood Brown became my referee, just his presence in contrast with Mr. Culbertson was so fine, so great, that it was pleasant."

And all the experts are agreed that the match has not been a fair test of the bidding systems; that a bidding system cannot be accurately tested without duplicate play.

There, all of you folks (please leave the "s" on you copyreaders) who think this contest is deciding anything, ought to study around a little bit. You ought to think about such things as book sales and lecture fees, and strawberry shortcake and such like.

The tournament entered the eighth session last night on the 285th hand and 49th rubber. A resume of the bidding follows:

49th rubber:
Lightner, 3 NT, made six; all passed; Culbertson, 2S, made; Jacoby, 2S, down one; Culbertson, 3 D, made.

50th rubber:
Lightner, 4 H, made five; Lenz, 4 S, down one; Jacoby, 1 C, made three; Lenz, 3 S, made; Lenz, NT, down one; Jacoby, 7 H, doubled, down one; Jacoby, 4 C, down one; Lightner, 4 NT, made six.

51st rubber:
Lightner, 2 C, down two; Jacoby, 3 S, made; Jacoby, 1 S, made three; Lightner, 4 H, made (100 honors); Lenz, 3 C, made five; Culbertson, 4 H, made.

52nd rubber:
Culbertson, 1 NT, made four; Lightner, 2 NT, down one; Lenz, 6 H, down three; Jacoby, 3 H, made; Lightner, 2 NT, made; Lenz, 2 H, down 1; Lenz, 2 C, made 3; Lenz, 3 S, doubled, down 2; Culbertson, 3 NT, made.

53rd rubber:
Lightner, 6 D, down 1; Jacoby, 1 S, doubled, down 5; Lenz, 2 S, down 2, (100 honors); Lightner, 3 NT, made 4; Lightner, 2 NT, down 2; Lenz, 1 H, down one; Lightner, 3 NT, made; Lenz, 2 D, made three; Jacoby 2 H, down one; Jacoby, 3 C, made; Jacoby, 3 C, made; Lenz, 1 NT, made; Lightner, 3 NT, made six.

54th rubber:
Lightner, 2 D, doubled, down one;

Lightner, 4 S, made all passed; Jacoby, 4 S, made five; Lenz, 4 H, made five.

Culbertson-Lightner lead 4,965.

What Averages Of Big Leagues Show This Week

Chicago, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Another reason why the Philadelphia Athletics won their third straight American League championship, was revealed in the fielding scores of the junior circuit, released today.

Connie Mack's organization tied with Washington as the best fielding team in the league with an average of .976, and set a new record for handling the ball. The A's made only 141 errors in 153 games, bettering the old mark of 144 set by the Yankees in 1923. The Senators also cut in on the glory, making only 142 misplays in 156 games.

Irving Burns, young first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, rated as the leader in his department, fielding for an average of .933 for 143 games. Bill Sweeney of the Red Sox and Jimmie Fox of the Athletics, finished with the same average, but played in 124 and 122 games, respectively. Burns participated in 131 double plays and made only 11 errors in 1,471 chances.

Buddy Myer of Washington and Max Bishop of the Athletics tied for the leadership among the second basemen, with averages of .984, but Oscar Melillo, St. Louis, in accepting 971 chances, turned in an impressive record. Melillo was only 17 chances shy of Napoleon Lajoie's record set in 1908.

Third Sackers Fail
Play among the third basemen was not up to standard, Jimmy Dykes of Philadelphia and Ossie Bluege of Washington, doing the better work. Dykes in 87 games, handled the ball for a .974 average, while Bluege, in 152 games, had .969. Willie Kamm, with Chicago and Cleveland several times leader, finished well down the list and Jimmie Fox, who played 26 games at the position, felded for only .908.

Hal Rhyme of Boston stood out among the shortstops. He had an average of .963 for 147 games, accepting 797 chances and helping in 74 double plays. Joe Cronin of Washington accepted the most chances, 811, and finished second among the regulars with an average of .950 for 155 games.

Tom Oliver, Boston outfielder, compiled a fine record to lead his department. He accepted 448 chances with only three errors, for an average of .993. Sammy West of Washington ranked second, handling 415 chances with only four errors for an average of .990.

Roy Johnson of Detroit, led the outfielders in double plays, participating in eight.

Fielded Perfectly
Five pitchers, Robert Moses Grove and Rube Walberg of the Athletics, George Uhle of Detroit, Clint Brown of Cleveland, and Henry Johnson of New York, all got through the season as regulars without making an error. Wiley Moore of Boston had the remarkable total of 70 assists in 185 innings, while Wesley Ferrell of Cleveland had 74, but worked 276 innings.

Bill Dickey of the Yankees felded for .996 to lead the catchers. He had 78 assists, was in six double plays and was not charged with a pass ball. Bennet Tate of Chicago and Rick Ferrell of St. Louis each helped in 11 double plays, while Ferrell, Mickey Cochrane and Charlie Berry of the Red Sox, were charged with six passed balls each.

St. Louis was the leader in double plays, catching them in pairs on 160 occasions, with the Athletics next with 151. Following the Athletics and Senators, the team fielding averages were: New York, .972; Boston, .970; Detroit, .964; St. Louis, .963; Cleveland, .963; and Chicago, .961.

Young Desperado Killed In Holdup

Oklahoma City, Dec. 17.—(UP)—Charles Stanley, 23, Oklahoma convict who escaped two weeks ago while serving a life penitentiary sentence for armed robbery at McAlester, was slain by Dallas policemen last night when he attempted to hold up a filling station. An officer was wounded.

Two weeks ago Stanley made good his threat to break prison by trading cells with D. D. Bryant, Oklahoma car thief. He climbed over the prison walls, under gunfire from guards.

He had been in the penitentiary since May 7. He was convicted at Oklahoma City in the robbery of the H. L. Pair home at Edmond in which he kidnapped Raymond Pair, 13, and fled with him to St. Louis. The boy was released there.

Stanley was captured near East St. Louis after a gun battle with officers. He made three unsuccessful attempts to escape after being brought here for trial, once during the trial and twice afterward. He also was accused of other robberies.

SCHOOLS OPENS

COBBLER SHOP
Detroit —(UP)—A shoe repair shop has been established at the Cooper School Detroit to remodel shoes for the children of needy families. Cobblers, otherwise unemployed, have repaired over 1,300 pairs of shoes in the past three months. The school shoemakers have been placed on the Department of Public Welfare lists.

COLLIER'S NAMES ALL-AMERICAN IN TODAY'S WEEKLY

Is Perpetuation of Original All-Stars Of Walter Camp

New York, Dec. 18.—Selection for Collier's All-America football team which is a perpetuation of the original All-America founded by Walter Camp, were announced today. The players chosen are:

The eleven men finally selected for the Walter Camp gold footballs are credited by the judges with having "a greater combination of speed and power than any team named in years."

Dalrymple is the only man on the 1931 list who also appeared on the All-America last year.

Credit for the most spectacular play of the season goes to a star who is not selected for the team. "The greatest run of the year," say the judges, "was made by Ray Stecker of the Army in the game against Notre Dame."

The football season of 1931 is characterized by the selection committee as "bewildering," owing to the fact that many strong teams which began the campaign with a dash, finished sprawled out. "Notre Dame started with a wild sweep and then fell before Southern California and the Army," the judges comment. "Yale won no major game up to her Harvard test and Harvard had won every game until the Yale meeting, yet it was the Blue that fluttered above the Crimson when the two met."

"Tulane alone, with its speed and smoothness, finished November at full strength. The wear and tear showed on Georgia, Notre Dame, Northwestern and Harvard to a marked degree, and all this must be taken into consideration when one starts to consider the work of individual stars. They often rise and fall as their teams rise and fall, for they are all a part of the organization which they represent."

"There were more than the usual number of injuries this year, due in part to incorrect blocking, the hardest and roughest part of the game. The West Coast again proved its strength, with victories over Minnesota, Notre Dame and Dartmouth. The South had one of its greatest years. The Mid-west had a strong general average. The East was more spotty than usual."

The closest competition for the prized gold trophies designed by Walter Camp among the end selections, Dalrymple was out in front with something to spare. But Smith, Orsi and Cronkite were in a driving finish and Smith of Georgia was finally given the edge in consideration of the terrific schedule he had to face, which included ten hard games and almost no respite from one week to another.

The comment of the judges on their other selections is as follows:

"Naturally the backfield was close. If Shaver had been placed at quarterback, Gene McEver of Tennessee would have drawn the fullback assignment. Morton of Dartmouth was nearest Wood in the east, but Wood rose to greater heights at times and his all-around effectiveness as a team director was more consistent. Ray Stecker of the Army and Crickard of Harvard were two other outstanding stars."

"It has been a long time since any All-America backfield had such a diversity of skill as Rentner, Schwartz and Shaver can show. Each of the backs selected was forced to face a heavy schedule."

"The battle for line position was just as keen as the battle of the backs. The final selection brought out one remarkable turn—this is probably the heaviest All-America line ever selected, and yet one of the fastest and one of the most aggressive. The average weight of the line from tackle to tackle is 215 pounds and yet there isn't a slow-moving man in the group."

In addition to the eleven men named for the awards, the following players were judged to be "of all-America calibre," and were considered in making the final choice.

Halfbacks—Booth, Yale; Stecker, Army; McEver, Tennessee; Pinckert, Southern California; Zimmerman, Tulane; Auker, Kansas State; Koy, Texas; Mason, S. M. U.; Crickard, Harvard; Murphy, Fordham; Grossman, Rutgers; McCall, Dartmouth; Caddell, Stanford; Henderson, Vanderbilt; Mott, Georgia; Reider, Pittsburgh; Viviano, Cornell; Ferraro, Cornell; Hinkle, Bucknell; Weller, Haskell; Moffat, Stanford.

Fullbacks—Cain, Alabama; Felts, Tulane; Hillman, Stanford; Hewitt, Michigan; Manders, Minnesota; Quarterbacks—Morton, Dartmouth; Mohler, Southern California; Downs, Georgia; O'Connell, Holy Cross; Cramer, Ohio State.

Centers—Yarr, Notre Dame; Miller, Purdue; McDuffee, Columbia; Chalmers, N. Y. U.; Tibbett, Georgia Tech; McDaniel, California; Gracey, Vanderbilt; Lodrigues, Tulane.

Guards—Baker, Southern California; Hoffman, Notre Dame; Sum-

Panthers And Illini In Feature Contests

Chicago, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's roving Panthers of the hardwoods have a chance of winning one of the most elusive titles in all college basketball tonight—the championship of Indiana.

They battle Purdue's Boilemakers in one of the feature game classics of the year at LaFayette and if they win, they will have captured the stronghold of college basketball. The Panthers defeated Indiana University, 29 to 24, in a thrilling overtime battle Wednesday night but the Boilemakers may not be as "easy" to overcome. The Boilemakers, led by Johnny Wooden, have displayed plenty of power in their impressive victories over Notre Dame and Washington University of St. Louis and have been labelled as one of the strongest teams in the forthcoming Big Ten championship race.

Pitt will send virtually a veteran team against the Boilemakers in an effort to repeat last year's victory. Illinois, another favorite in the Big Ten race, will make it second start of the season tonight against Miami University in the latter's new gymnasium at Oxford, O.

It used to be, he admitted, although with three companions he bagged 50 ducks in three days in northwest Oklahoma. It was suggested the gun might be to blame.

"I use a 20 gauge automatic shotgun with a 30 inch full choke barrel. It gives the birds a better chance," he chuckled.

His hunting equipment consists of one gun, two bird dogs, a pointer and a setter, and an auto for his frequent junkets, with his wife for a companion.

The Cardinal centerfielder was in excellent condition and at mid-season weight.

He was jubilant over the Cards' prospects. "I don't see how they're going to stop us," he said, eager as a school boy for a game of marbles. "We were the best balanced club in the National League last year. We ought to be better next year."

"The race will be tighter, Chicago and Brooklyn should be better. The Giants are always tough. Hack Wilson ought to help the Cards a lot. I look for him to have a good year. He is due. And if there is a better second baseman or all around fellow than Frankie Frisch, brother, show him to me."

Martin has not received his 1932 contract, usually sent in February, but he anticipated no trouble.

"I won't have any trouble. The Cards have been plenty 'white' to me."

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Dec. 18.—(UP)—One of the major disappointments of any life to date has been my inability to run across any of that particular sort of gloom which so many of my fellow workers find at nearly every sporting event. You know the kind—the thick luscious variety that can be sliced with a knife.

Finding this gloom—that-can-be-sliced-with-a-knife has become an obsession. This writer never will forget his experience at the fifth world series game in Philadelphia this year. A few minutes after the game he happened to catch a co-worker's lead out of the corner of one eye.

There, in nice, black, shiny type, he read: Shibe Park, Philadelphia Oct. 7—gloom so thick it could be sliced with a knife filled the Athletics' dressing room today. . . .

A few seconds later, knife in hand, this correspondent plunged into the A's dressing room.

"Where is it?" he cried.

"Where is what?" Bob Grove demanded.

"That gloom you can slice with a knife."

"The guy is nuts; throw him out," bellowed Mule Haas. Somebody did. . . .

Since then search has been conducted, in a dozen places, Singer's dressing room after his kayo by Battalino; the Navy dressing room after the Army game; the New York Americans' dressing room after their licking by the New York Rangers.

But not so much as a wisp of sliceable gloom was found. And the thing that maddens is that the next day the papers said it was there.

Today a tip from a friend said the hunt will be over when Tulane and Southern California finish their tilt in the Rose Bowl.

"Boy, when that game is over," his letter reads in part, "there's going to be some powerful gloom. I don't know where the gloom is going to be—New Orleans or Los Angeles—but it's going to be in one place or another."

"Those two towns are the football gooiest cities in the United States. The only thing that compares with New Orleans' faith and pride in Tulane is Los Angeles' faith and pride in Southern California. New Orleans thinks the Green Wave could spot an earthquake ten points and still beat it to a frazzle. Los Angeles thinks the Trojans could spot a ten-alarm fire 15 points and still put it out."

"So if you're looking for gloom—that-can-be-sliced-with-a-knife, choose the loser and be in its home town on the night after the game. The gloom'll be so thick you can spread it on bread."

Pardon me folks, while I pack my bag and buy a ticket to. . . ?

Mystery Tipster Has Bookies Out

Chicago, Dec. 18.—(AP)—A mysterious tipster has just about started a riot among Chicago's horse players and "bookies."

He has given 20 straight "tips" on the seventh race at Tanforan and 16 of them have been just like money in the bank to the players and like heavy mortgages to the harassed bookmakers.

No one seems to know the mysterious one but for the past three weeks he has spread his information far and wide over Chicago. Yesterday, his winning tip was Gorman, "mystery tip number 20."

After taking it on the chin repeatedly, the Chicago bookmakers decided to play safe last Tuesday. When money poured in on the mysterious tip of Bobby Doyle again in the seventh race, the "bookies" refused to accept another dollar. The horse finished out of the money and they lost thousands of dollars.

The Rich Lady's Christmas

By Harold L. Cook

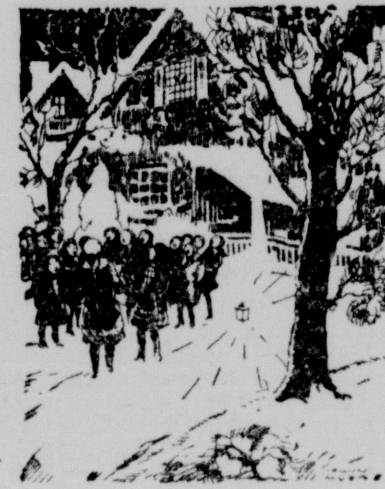

MRS. PENNOCK gazed wistfully at the bower of flowers which surrounded her sick bed. Dozens of chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, and lilies breathed their perfume into the room. But Mrs. Pennock was not thinking of the fragrance nor of the beauty of this wealth of bloom as she gazed at it. She was thinking of her poor neighbors and of her inability to take them Christmas boxes as she had done for the past fifteen years.

Not that Mrs. Pennock's neighbors were actually poor. They were poor only in comparison with her.

Mrs. Pennock loved being neighborly with such people. In untold ways she lessened their everyday expenses by sending baskets of fruit from her orchard, and vegetables from her garden.

For a week before Christmas she would work with her cook making cookies. These were her specialty—delicious rich, fruit cookies. And she made puddings and pies for every household in the community. That left a few nickels extra in every father's pocket towards the skates for

She Heard the Voices of Young People Singing Christmas Carols.

His boy or the ribbons for his girl. Everybody counted on Mrs. Pennock's goodies now.

That was what worried her. The neighbors might be expecting them. They of course knew of the serious operation she had had and of her present condition.

She sighed and wiped a tear from her cheek. Just then she heard the voices of young people singing Christmas carols under her windows. She listened as the old familiar songs rang out one after the other. When stillness reigned again she closed her eyes and tried to sleep, but she heard whispers on the stairs, and a score of rudy faces appeared at her boudoir door. The neighbors' children stood there waiting for permission to enter.

"Come in," called Mrs. Pennock, "and a Merry Christmas to you all!" "Merry Christmas," shouted a score of voices, as a score of happy boys and girls crowded into the room, and Jim Larkin, president of the high school senior class, stepped forward as spokesman for the rest.

"I hope we are not intruding, Mrs. Pennock," he said. "Your nurse said we might come up to wish you a Merry Christmas, and a very happy New Year. Every family in the community is thinking of you and wanted to send something to make your Christmas happy. During so many years you brought happiness to all of us, and we wanted to take this opportunity of expressing to you our appreciation of what a wonderful neighbor you are. We know there is nothing we can give you except our thanks, for you have everything. But every boy and girl and mother and father has placed his name up this card which we present to you."

Mrs. Pennock took in her hand the beautiful hand-made booklet which Jim extended to her. Christmas angels were singing on the cover of it, and under the angels appeared in gold letters "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men." On the inside was beautifully printed "God gives us friends and flowers, and makes friendship more beautiful even than the gardens and for all seasons." Then followed the sixty-eight signatures of Mrs. Pennock's neighbors. "This is the most wonderful Christmas present I have ever had," exclaimed the beautiful rich lady in thanking the young people.

GOOD THOUGHTS

The world is God's workshop; the raw materials are His; the ideals and patterns are His; our hands are the "members of Christ," our reward His recognition. Blacksmith or banker, draughtsman or doctor, statesman, must work unto the Lord, not merely making a living, but devoting a life.

—Malbie Babcock.

For anything worth having, one must pay the price, and the price is always work, patience, love and self-sacrifice. No paper money, no promise to pay—but the gold of real service.

—John Burroughs.

Have I done aught of value to my fellow men? Then I have done much for myself.

—Lavater.

Mortals are running to and fro looking for something to do, something interesting and not too hard or exacting, or else they are doing too many of the things that are not good business, meanwhile complaining of the lack of time or of the tremendous demand upon them and their time. When we are willing to accept Jesus as our Way-Shower we begin to realize that being about our Father's business does not interfere with our conduct of human duties, but opens the way for a broader activity. He who has accepted Christ Jesus as the way, is attending more closely to this business of being more kind, more patient, and forgiving, is proving for himself and for humanity that our God's business is truly a profitable one.

The Christian Science Monitor.

Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy: That they do good, that they be rich in good works.

— I Timothy 6.

Nature Sleuths Detect Killers By Talonprints

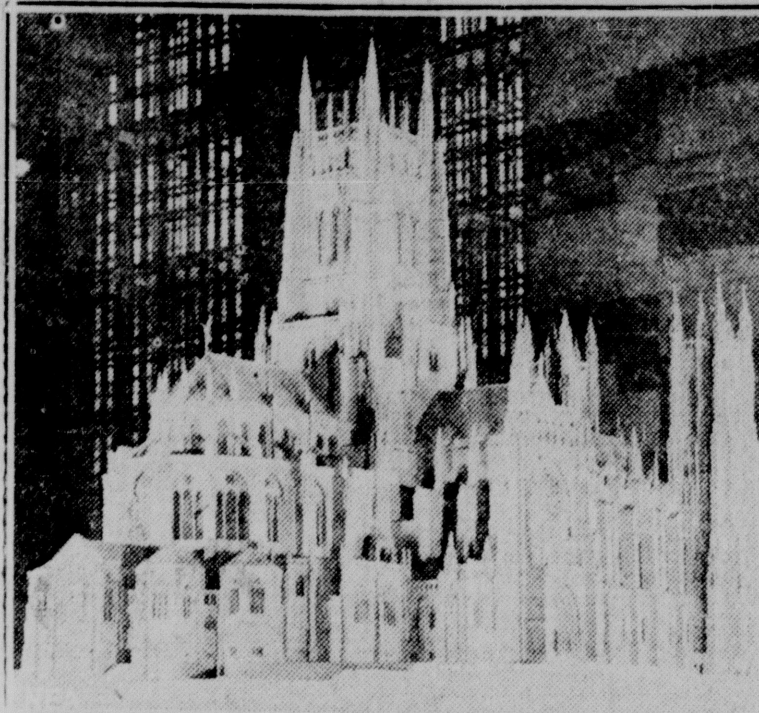

Washington—A new type of detective has made progress in identifying "killers," reports of the American Game Conference held recently at New York reveal. By adopting methods somewhat similar to those employed by fingerprint experts in running down human criminals, wild-life investigators, working in the fields and woods, have now arrived at an almost complete system for positively identifying the species of wild creature responsible for the death of any valuable game bird, even when only a few feathers remain to supply the clues. It was announced by scientific workers, meeting at the conference.

A group of field men who for two years have been conducting a survey of the ruffed grouse in New York state under the direction of Gardner Bump, in an effort to save this rare species from extinction, exhibited feathers bearing the tell-tale evidence which they have learned to read, some of it incomprehensible without the aid of magnifying glasses and photography.

Mr. Bump explained that their extensive studies have shown that a fox, in devouring its kill, invariably clips the wing feathers off sharply at a certain point, while a winged killer, just as invariably leaves talon marks which an expert can decipher. The nature of the marks and the distance between them distinguish the handiwork of a great horned owl from that of a hawk, and may even label the species of hawk. However, no way has so far been discovered to distinguish the attack of a hawk or raven from that of a straying house cat.

Dr. A. A. Allen, ornithologist, of Cornell University and chairman of the meeting, explained that while it is an accepted rule that no species of wild life shall be completely eradicated from any territory where a disappearing species is involved it has been found helpful to thin the ranks of the worst predatory animals.

Scientists reported progress in saving grouse and prairie chickens by working on the theory that this family of game birds is highly susceptible to diseases spread by civilization through poultry and other birds that have developed immunity. It was urged that both species be prevented from coming in contact with poultry on farms.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

There's a stir among the trees breeze,
Little ice-points clash and clink.
Little needles nod and wink, Sturdy fir-trees sway and sigh—
Here am I! Here am I!

"All the summer long I stood
In the silence of the woods,
Tall and tapering I grew;
What might happen well I knew;
For one day a little bird
Sang, and in the song I heard
Many things quite strange to me
Of Christmas and the Christmas tree.

"When the sun was hid from sight
In the darkness of the night,
When the wind with sudden fret
Pulled at my green coronet,
Staunch I stood and hid my fears,
Weeping silent, fragrant tears,
Praying still that I might be Fitted for a Christmas tree.

"Now here we stand
On every hand!
In us a hoard of summer stored,
Birds have flown over us,
Blue sky has covered us,
Soft winds have sung to us,
Blossoms have flung to us,
Measureless sweetness,
Now in completeness
We wait.

Seals Sale Aids In Aid And Preven- tion of Tuberculosis

One of the greatest accomplishments of the educational work sponsored by the various state and county tuberculosis associations, is the establishment of a new concept of tuberculosis, and how treated.

Not many years ago, tuberculosis was considered fatal. Those unfortunate who knew they were afflicted held out no hope for recovery.
As a result of the educational part of the United States, tuberculosis sufferers now realize that they have a good chance for recovery, if the proper course of treatment, with plenty of fresh air, rest and correct diet is strictly adhered to.

The Lee County Tuberculosis society not only aids the afflicted, but also prevents development of tuberculosis. Here, as many other communities, groups of apparently well children are being examined to learn if there is any danger of their developing tuberculosis.

The two tests used for this purpose are the tuberculin test and the X-ray. These tests reveal the small percentage of children who have already sustained some ill effects from tuberculosis, but are not yet sick with the disease. By instructing the children and their parents and by providing special protective care for certain of them, such children can be safeguarded from developing chronic lung tuberculosis later in life.

It is from the children of today, between the ages of five and 15 years that the great majority of adult cases of tuberculosis will develop 10 years hence.

Tuberculin is a colorless liquid made in the laboratory from the substance on which the tubercle bacilli have grown or cultured. It is thoroughly sterilized and contains no living germs. It is perfectly harmless as used in the tuberculin test.

A droplet of tuberculin is injected, usually in the forearm between the layers of the skin. If the person has been infected with tuberculosis, within 48 hours the spot of the injection will become red and slightly swollen. It will soon disappear. A positive reaction does not indicate active tuberculosis. It demonstrates only whether the body has been invaded by tubercle bacillus, or infected.

Among school children up to the eighth grade, 35 out of every 100 will show a positive tuberculin reaction. Of these, however, only two to five of each 100 will show upon X-ray examination that some damage has been done.

It is imperative to the good health of the county that the funds which make this great work possible, in part through the sale of Christmas seals, be maintained. Buy some seals, no matter how few, now. Use them on your Christmas mail. Show that you are thinking of those unfortunate who are fighting for their lives, and of those who can be spared from that fight.

OZARKS SUPPLY 250 MILES OF CHRISTMAS WREATHS—

Springfield, Mo. —(AP)— Cedar trees from Ozark hillsides are unwinding a trail of 250 miles long in 15 states this year, in the form of wreathing for street decorations in widely scattered cities.

Although Christmas trees shipped from this section go only to un-wooded states nearby, the wreathing originated by a Springfield seed company, has grown in popularity yearly. This season's shipments of 1,250,000 linear feet necessitated the cutting of a small forest of trees.

Fresh cedar, cut in small branches and wired with a foliage winding machine perfected here, is used for the wreathing, which this Yuletide will decorate streets and buildings in states as far distant as Pennsylvania, Nevada and the Dakotas.

Reorganization Of Assessment Machinery

The Illinois Voter of December has the following article of interest,
"Reorganization of Assessment Machinery," by Mrs. Mary L. Lang-worthy, who talks before Dixon branch, Illinois Women Voters, Saturday, chairman Committee on Taxation, Department of Efficiency in Government.

In July of this year, because the tax situation seemed so desperate that something must be done about it immediately, the Governor of Illinois received many requests for a special session of the Legislature in order that some remedial laws might be passed. The Governor replied that he would call such a session if he could get a definite plan of relief from Cook County. To this end he appointed a Commission known as The Governor's Tax Conference to study the situation and report to him in the fall.

The Commission worked all summer, inviting every taxing body in the county to present their problems and in October submitted a detailed report, accompanied by carefully prepared bills in consequence of which Governor Emmerson issued the call for a special session. The session convened on the 5th of November and is still in session.

One of the important bills offered is one similar to that which the Illinois League of Women Voters endorsed during the last session and which it now endorses.

This bill, known as House Bill 11 and Senate Bill 14, carries the following provisions: There shall be abolished the present Board of Assessors, the present Board of Review and the present Township Assessors, thirty in number.

There is substituted a single centralized Board for Assessment and Review. This is to consist of three persons, one of whom shall be the County Assessor, trained in his profession, who shall be responsible for equality of all assessments, the work being done by skilled deputies acting under his close direction. The two other members shall be Reviewers, but the reviewing shall be done en banc, with the Assessor sitting with the Reviewers to explain the methods and reasons for any given assessment.

The members of this Board shall be appointed by the President of the County Board, with the acquiescence of the full Board. The two Reviewers shall not belong to the same political party. Their term of office shall be four years.

It is expected that the effect of the small board will be to fix the responsibility for assessments, a thing impossible to do under the present loose and expensive system.

The objections that have been raised to the proposed organization are (a) that it is putting too much power in the one Assessor, (b) that it is putting too much power in the hands of the President of the County Board, and (c) that the people should elect men charged with the authority to levy taxes. These arguments lose weight when we consider

Ethel

that most of the money derived from taxation is spent by appointee officials. It seems fair to believe that appointive officials could as honestly assess as spend taxes.

Certainly, under the new bill, we should do away with the lack of coordination and equality now riding us. And we have a remedy, in case of inefficiency or malfeasance, through the provision in the bill that these officials can be removed for cause. Under the present elective system not even an indictment can compel a discredited official to resign from the Board.

Please communicate at once with your Senator and Representatives and tell them you want them to vote for Senate Bill 14 and House Bill 11.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF by ALICIA HART © 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

One of the most appealing things about debutantes is, of course, the fact that they see with the eyes of youth.

If you still want your eyes to have that youth-look about them, when you yourself are in your thirties or older, you must do something about it.

First of all, shining eyes are much more apt to look forth from a healthy body and a happy mind.
Something can be done about both of these!

Plenty of sleep has a way of improving eyes that have grown tired and strained. Next to plenty of sleep, plenty of exercise in the open air is excellent. After that there are extra helps you can give.

Daily eye-washings should be taught children about the time they learn to grasp their toothbrushes in their little hands. But if you didn't learn to wash your eyes cut when that young, it isn't too late yet.

A mild boracic acid wash is excellent and cheap. There are soothing commercial eye rinses but be sure to get a good one. Use an eye cup.

And after rinsing one eye by cup-ping it, throwing back your head and opening and shutting your eye so the water will thoroughly cleanse it, dump the eye cup, rinse it and use more lotion for the other eye.
This prevents ever transferring from one eye to the other any dirt, germs or other matter.

Eye packs stand high as a pick-me-up for tired eyes late in the day.
Any beauty parlor has its own brand of eye packs. You can make your own herbs or you can use hot and cold water packs. The main thing is to be down for a few minutes while applying these packs.
This closing the eyes for even a few minutes has its effect on their brightness later on.

Keep Christmas Tree Green With Sugar and Water

Chicago, Dec. 18—Give your Christmas tree, advises the conservation department of the Izak Walton League in a current bulletin which tells all helpers of Santa Claus how to keep a Christmas tree fresh and green in the home. Nothing but water and a little sugar are needed to satisfy these packs.
This closing the eyes for even a few minutes has its effect on their brightness later on.

One of the troubles which housewives have with Christmas trees after they are set up in the house is the rapid loss of the needles from such trees due to the fact that they dry out quickly in the home. Sometimes only a touch is necessary to a shower of spruce needles to the carpet. But there is a way out of this difficulty, says the Walton League which advises the following method of procedure:

When it comes time to set up the Christmas tree, cut off a thin piece from the base of it so that a new clean cut surface is exposed. Then set up the tree in a cross like support with the base of the tree im-

Women Voters to Support Taxing Bill

The Illinois League of Women Voters continues its support of the original House Bill 11 and Senate Bill 14, providing for the revision of Assessment Machinery in Cook County. The so-called "compromise" bill, which has received much publicity during the past week, the League members feel, is not a "compromise" at all, but is in reality based upon entirely different principles from those set forth in the original bills.

"Appointments by both the governor and president of the county board jointly do not necessarily mean bi-party representation," Mrs.
Ralph B. Treadway, the League's state president, has written in a letter that has been sent to the leaders of all local Leagues thru-out the state. "As often as not we have these two offices filled by members of the same party. Furthermore, the bills we now support provide that the reviewing members shall not be of the same party as the assessor. Decentralization would be even more complete under the 'compromise' than it is now; and the suggestion of involving the Supreme Court in the situation would 'make port of these bills, to various state board members.

Celebrate Golden Wedding Monday

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Donaldson of Polio will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Monday, December 21. Open house will be held Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 p. m.
for the close relatives and on Monday afternoon from 2 to 5 p. m. for other relatives, friends and neighbors.

Miss Mary Davidson, daughter of Thomas and Sarah Davidson, of Polio became the bride of Frank Donaldson, son of William and Harriett Donaldson, on December 21, 1881. The ceremony was performed by Dr. J. H. More, pastor of the Polo
M. E. church, at the home of Mr.
and Mrs. Charles Newton in Chicago. Mrs. Newton was a sister of the bride.

Mr. Donaldson's parents always made their home in this community, residing on the farm now owned by Cal Ports. They had seven sons and all are living. Mrs. Donaldson's parents also resided in this community.
She and a niece, Mrs. Henry Linde-man, of Polo, are the only remaining members of that branch of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson started farming on the place they now occupy four and a half miles northwest of Polo. They have resided there through their entire married life. Mr.
and Mrs. Donaldson have five children, four daughters and one son.

They are Mrs. Bert (Grace) Fraser,
Mrs. Dallas (Hazel) Davison and Wade Donaldson of Polo, Mrs. Robert (Myrtle) Short of Galva and Mrs. Elbert (Eva) Davison of Mount Morris. They have twelve grandchildren.

Pastor And Wife Wed Fifty Years

Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Pittman, residents of Leaf River, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, Dec. 22. They will hold open house at their home from 2 to 4 p. m. at which time relatives and friends may call to extend their congratulations.

Miss Sarah A. Sheesley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Sheesley of Rushville, Ill., became the bride of Robert W. Pittman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pittman of Darlington, Indiana, in a wedding ceremony performed Dec. 22, 1881, by Rev. J. L.
Townner, at the home of the bride's parents. Three daughters were born to this union. One deceased, Maggie E., who passed away in childhood. The living daughters are Mrs. Wm. (Jennie) Dew and Mrs.

Fred (Ella) Frawert, both of Polo.
There are four grandchildren.

In 1885, Rev. and Mrs. Pittman took up a homestead in western Kansas as a sideline to home missionary work, where they lived eight years.

He has preached in eight states in nineteen pastorates from one to twenty years.

The Congregational Christian churches of which he is now the pastor, are putting on a program in the church at Leaf River at 4 o'clock after which refreshments will be served in the annex.

SCIENTIST SEES NEW PHOTO TUBE AS A TIME-SAVER

New Invention Is Expected To Take Up Menial Tasks

Schneetady, N. Y.—(UP)—The photo-electric tube scientifically termed "electric eyes that never close" is expected to make possible, "a painless method of saving time."

Dr. Willis R. Whitney, director of the General Electric Company's research laboratory here, looks upon the tube as "one of those new things that mankind must eternally be contriving to prevent insects, or their equivalents, from displacing him upon the earth."

Dr. Whitney, after learning that the tubes already are doing petty jobs for persons such as opening and closing doors, turning on and off water fountains and sorting beans at the rate of 40,000 pounds daily, predicts a great usefulness for them.

"The Photo-Tube," Dr. Whitney said, "has great advantages in the manner services of seeing. We need to sleep and we repeatedly wink and miss something. But, the tube never sleeps, winks, or misses anything."

The research expert believes that the tube may be made more accurate and sensitive than the eye of man. It is used with telescopic observations where it must be on the alert for hours at a stretch.

There always is the chance that the wink of a human's eye will miss something when it is fixed on a given object over a set period of time, scientists have said.

Dr. Whitney says the tube is a token of the machine age and its direct use is a painless process of saving time.

"Photo-Tube," according to Dr. Whitney, "measures light too feeble to be seen by the human eye. It sees ultra-violet, infra-red and X-rays. It is relatively a new tool, and we may expect great improvements."

Do You Remember?

One Year Ago Today—The world's pocket billiard championship changed hands as Irwin Rudolph of Cleveland beat Ralph Greenleaf in the final match 125 to 120. Rudolph's rally to overcome a 45-point lead by Greenleaf featured the match.

Five Years Ago Today — Playing his last American tournament before sailing for Europe early in the new year, Big Bill Tilden, former national singles tennis champion, disposed of Neil Sullivan, Joseph Rowland and Francis Hunter without the loss of a set in the Penn A. C. indoor tourney.

Ten Years Ago Today—Chicago's Cardinals and Staleys, rival pro football elevens for the city title, battled to a scoreless tie on snow and ice in a game filled with unsuccessful field goal attempts. For the Cards, a pair of former Northwestern stars, Paddy Driscoll and Bob Koehler, held the spotlight alternately with the Staley stars, Chick Harley and Pete Stinecomb, former Ohio State All-Americans.

Spine Injury Will Keep Marchy Out

Evansville, Ill., Dec. 18—(AP)—Marchy Schwartz, Notre Dame's fleet All-American halfback, has been forced to reveal his private "iron man" story at last.

It is that he played all or most of all of the 1931 campaign with a spinal injury serious enough to have stopped any good football star.

Schwartz' secret came out when he was invited to compete with the all star eastern team in the annual east-west charity game at San Francisco New Year's Day. He took a physical examination and was told the injury was too serious for further play within the next few months.

The Notre Dame star injured his spine before the opening of the 1931 campaign and didn't start active practice along with the rest of the team. The injury healed slightly and he escaped excessive jars until the Southern California and Army games when the injury recurred.

Schwartz's loss was a hard blow to the all star eastern team, which will assemble at Northwestern tomorrow and leave for the Pacific coast the same night.

Favor Easterners In Charity Game

San Francisco, Dec. 18—(UP)—The all-eastern team of gridiron luminaries was regarded as a favorite today in the forthcoming clash with an all-western squad in the annual New Year's charity game here.

Boasting the pick of the east's football fields, many of them All-Americans, the team under Andy Kerr of Colgate and Dick Hanley of Northwestern will be one of the most formidable in years.

The western team, chosen by Coach Percy Looney of the San Francisco Olympic Club and Dana X. Bible, coach at Nebraska, will have its own stars but the easterners have an edge because California and Southern California players are not available.

The Trojans, with several All-Americans and a large number of All-Coast players, meet Tulane at Pasadena the same day as the east-west game here, while the Golden Bears will play Georgia Tech at Atlanta the day after Christmas.

They're All in One Big Happy Family

Big families are happy ones, say Mr. and Mrs. August Freking of Heron Lake, Minn., shown above with their 19 children. They are as follows, left to right: Top row—Joseph L. Clementine (Mrs. R. E. Berg), Lawrence M. Monica (Mrs. Carl Bartosh), Mary, Leo, C. Rose (Mrs. Leo Leopold), Aloysius. Middle row—Frederick W. August, Jr., Edward, Alfred, George, Margaret, William A. Bottom row—Josephine, Mrs. Freking, Bernadine, Anastasia, Mrs. Freking, Clotilda. Mr. Freking's brother Ferdinand, of New Vienna, Ia., has 17 children. His wife is Mrs. August Freking's sister, both being daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Oberbroeckling of New Vienna.

ARGUMENTS ON FOOTBALL RAGE ON IN THE EAST

New York City's Trio Of Schools Centers Of Controversy

New York, Dec. 18—(AP)—The storm of football argument rages unabated, but nowhere with quite so devastating an effect as in New York.

Here all three major universities—Columbia, New York and Fordham—and one smaller school, Manhattan, have been centers of post season football controversy or discussion of one sort or another.

Three coaches have resigned, charges of professionalism have been fired and other arguments have crept in.

The storm, so far as New York is concerned, began with the attack launched by the New York University Daily News on John F. (Chick)

Meehan, on the grounds that he represented "big-time football." Meehan's resignation followed a few days later as N. Y. U. announced a "new athletic era" the cardinal point of which was the de-emphasis of football.

Two more coaches quit yesterday although not under such spectacular circumstances. John Law, Head Coach at Manhattan for two years, announced from Washington that he would not return here and Marty Brill, who was with Law at Washington, revealed he did not intend to serve again as Assistant Coach at Columbia. Both are Notre Dame alumni. Law was captain of the undefeated Humber team of 1929 and Brill wound up his career at South Bend a year later.

Columbia, shaken by charges and rumored charges of wide-spread professionalism, was back on an even keel again as this broadside met with prompt and complete denial from athletic authorities.

Fordham escaped the fires of controversy but the death of Con Murphy, hurt in the Bucknell game, and the serious injury in the same contest of John Szymanski, made it appear for a time as though the Rams might abolish football.

Fonseca Lines Up Corps Assistants

Chicago, Dec. 18 (UP)—Bill Cunningham, former National League outfielder with the New York Giants and Boston Braves, has been signed as coach of the Chicago White Sox for next season, Manager Lew Fonseca announced.

Thus the White Sox will have two coaches next season for the first time in years. Johnny Butler, former Denver Western League club manager, recently was signed as coach. Butler will devote most of his time to the infielders, and Cunningham will specialize on the outfielders. With the veteran Red Faber to help with the pitchers, Fonseca has lined up a promising group of assistants.

The Dixon Telegraph Accident Policy is a good thing to have. It costs but $1.25 a year. You are insured for $1,000 in case of death.

Schmeling Voted Best Heavyweight

New York, Dec. 17—(AP)—Max Schmeling of Germany, holder of the world's heavyweight championship, has been named as the world's leading heavyweight for 1931, by a vote of 70 leading boxing critics throughout the United States.

In the voting for the consensus, conducted annually by the New York Sun, Schmeling received 682 points out of a possible 700 or a percentage of 97.4. This percentage figure is the highest in any Sun consensus since 1927 when Gene Tunney attained a 596 mark.

Old Number 77 Is Able To Be Around

Chicago, Dec. 17—(AP)—Old number 77, otherwise Red Grange, can still get around on a football field.

Grange, the famous "Galloping Ghost" of the 1923-24-25 Illinois teams, led the Chicago Bears of the National Professional League in ground gaining with an average of 5.3 yards a try for the recent season. Grange lugged the ball 114 times for a total of 604 yards.

Brooklyn Team Is Seeking Nickname

New York, Dec. 18—(AP)—The Brooklyn baseball club, known as the "Robins" during the long reign of Manager Wilbert Robinson, is looking for a new nickname to carry under the rule of Max Carey.

Before Robinson lent his name to the club, the team was known first as the Superbas and then the Trolley Dodgers, a name which was later contrived to Dodgers.

$85,000 Will Create Paradise for Animals

A paradise for friendless animals was created by the will of the late Mrs. Clara B. K. Lockhart of Washington, Pa., who stipulated that the income on her $85,000 estate be used for the care of friendless cats, homeless hounds and worn-out work horses on her farm. In the inset above is a likeness of Mrs. Lockhart taken from a painting made by herself many years ago and only known picture of her. She was 77 at her death. At the left are some of the nine stray cats which were among the first inmates of Dixie Farm, the friendless animal home. Lester Kidwell, son of the farm manager, is seen holding "Buddy," cat taken to the death bed of Mrs. Lockhart at her request. Heirs may contest the will.

STUDENT PLANS ROCKET PLANE TRIP TO MOON

Ohio State Sophomore Is Designing Motor for Experiment

Columbus, O.—(UP)—Lester W. Woodford, 20-year-old sophomore at Ohio State University, is designing a rocket motor for use in a ship in which he hopes to make a trip to the moon.

The lunar expedition is more than a fantastic dream to Woodford. He believes it possible to travel to the moon and is arming himself with scientific facts before completing his plans. He has sought the advice of several of his professors and a few well known astronomers.

"A flight to the moon would be profitable for the metals you could bring back, aside from the scientific possibilities and the more sensational aspects of having been the first man to make an interstellar flight," Woodford said.

Seven Miles a Second
The youth plans to perfect his rocket motor first. He believes he can attain a speed of seven miles a second with the motor.

The ship planned would be painted half black and half silver, the black side to absorb the heat and the silver side to reflect it. By turning the ship, Woodford expects to maintain a suitable temperature.

"There is no friction in the stratosphere, so the idea the ship would burn up from friction is incorrect," he said.

200-Hour Trip

It would require only 200 hours to reach the moon, according to the inventor, who explained there was no limit to the speed attainable in space.

Landing the ship on the moon would be accomplished by use of a recoil apparatus and a landing gear.

"The biggest problem will be in building a cylinder which will withstand extreme temperatures and pressures," Woodford explained.

Auto Title Law

Cuts Insurance

Harrisburg, Pa.—(UP)—A reduction of from 30 to 35 per cent in automobile theft insurance premiums has been effected in Pennsylvania since the state's motor vehicle title law went into effect in 1923, according to S. H. Hollinger, chief of the title section of the state bureau of motor vehicles.

The title law is effective in bringing about recovery of many stolen cars, Hollinger pointed out.

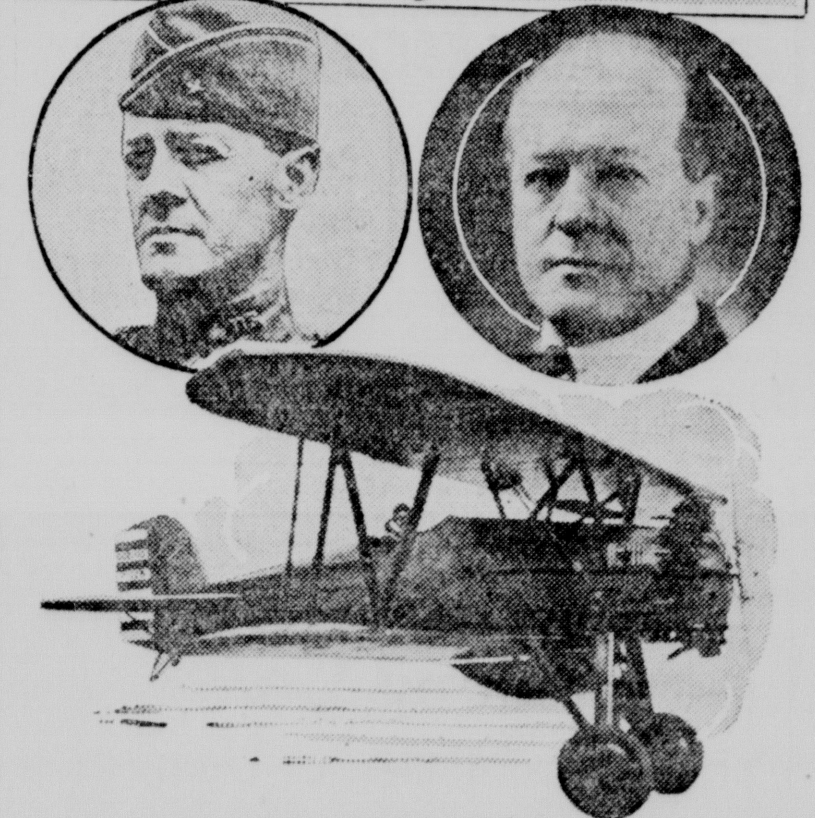

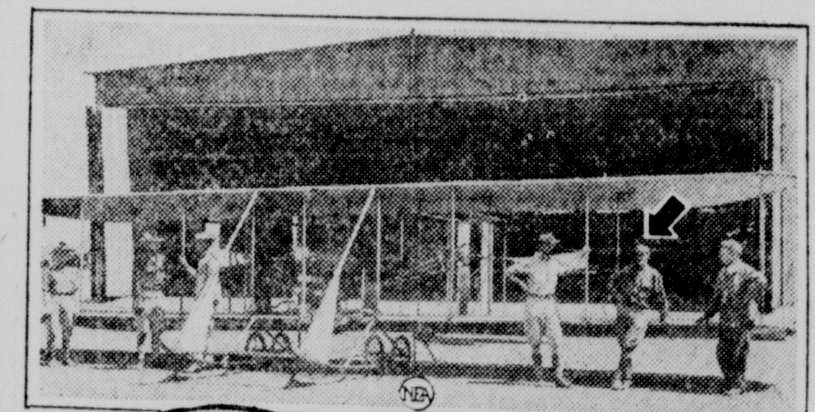

He stated that of 3,757 motor vehicles stolen during the first ten months of this year, 2,791 have been recovered. In other cases, cars stolen from the state probably have been taken to other states, which have no title laws, and sold there under fictitious bills of sale, he said.

Only 21 other states have title laws, he said.

Nearly all of the cars stolen in other states and recovered in Pennsylvania, when the thieves attempted to obtain Pennsylvania certificate of title, come from states which have no title laws, he said.

Army's First Birdman Takes Over Air Corps

Brigadier General Benjamin D. Foulois, who becomes chief of the U. S. Army Air Corps this month, flew the first and only plane the government owned when he joined the air division way back in 1908. The upper picture shows General Foulois (indicated by arrow) standing beside the craft-like plane with which he broke records two decades ago. It is a far cry from the army's sturdy, compact fighting ships of today like the one shown below. In the center is the general, left, as he appeared when war-time chief of the American war birds in France, and, at right, as he is today.

NEW METHOD AIDS VESSELS IN SOUNDINGS

Geodetic Survey's Report Reveals Simplified Modern Means

Washington.—(UP)—Just how deep is the cradle of the deep, can now be determined by a vessel traveling at full speed without sight of land.

It used to be that fathoming of the ocean's floor required the cautious laying of a plumb line, and depths were estimated by the length of that line. If land were in sight of the vessel making the computations the geometry of angles solved the problem more readily.

However, it is revealed in 100th annual report of the United States Coast Guard and Geodetic Survey that utilization of the velocity of sound in sea water permits accurate premises by greatly simplified modern means.

The survey, by employing bomb explosions and microphones ashore to pick up the detonations and radio such impulses back to the research ship, now obtains complete profiles of the bottom instantaneously.

Lodestones with awful magnetic power, that drew nails from ships and caused them to fall apart, are now an impossible myth, but there are phenomena and disturbances of terrestrial and marine magnetism which the Coast and Geodetic survey has investigated and present in its centennial report.

Besides furnishing seamen with information, the Survey now has come to the aid of the airplane pilot, the report states. A series of detailed maps of terrain, along the airways, including everything—phone wires, forests, tall buildings and landmarks—is being prepared.

Public Lands To Save Old Mexico

Mexico City.—(UP)—The agricultural and economic salvation of Mexico depends on the successful distribution of public lands, according to Cesar Cordova, a member of the National Agricultural Commission for five years.

"The plan is not a failure," said Cordova, "but the method of distribution should be changed and the program completed as soon as possible. In Mexico, which has more varied agricultural problems than any other country, three are many factors which make the solution of them difficult. Lack of agricultural production, lack of credit, racial differences, the tremendous rise in taxes, the enormous cost of regulating agricultural problems, the lack of understanding between landowners and those to whom land is granted, discontent, inertia are some of the problems which must be met."

"The doubt, inaction, uncertainty, and vacillation of individuals and organizations must be changed for peace, study and work, and when this is done an efficient solution will be reached, if not in a month, as General Obregon suggested, then in a year."

ANCIENT AUTOS SOUGHT

Detroit.—(UP)—Owners of the three oldest automobiles in Michigan have been offered cash prizes to exhibit their cars in the 31st annual auto show here, Jan. 23 to 30. A proviso in the offer, however, provides the cars must be older than 1915 models.

GIRL BURGLAR REFORMS
Detroit.—(UP)—A pretty 17-year-old girl, who obtained 25 cents in two burglaries here, has decided crime doesn't pay. The girl-burglar, Beatrice Webster, was arrested after police traced fingerprints found on the window of the garage she entered. "I needed money for my mother," the girl said, "but I was foolish trying to be a burglar."

Turks Barter With Traders

Istanbul.—(UP)—A wide-spread return to Biblical times, when goods were bartered and exchanged instead of being paid for in coin, has had a disastrous effect on Turkey's markets.

It happened this way. After several years of agricultural slump, the peasants are both to spend their cash. Traders have tried to sell them goods, which, in ordinary times, they would be only too anxious to buy.

Now, however, the peasants refuse to part with their cash, and the only way they will do business is to pay for the goods with sheep, goats or cattle and poultry.

The traders have been forced to accept these terms, but when they return to the cities, having driven their "purchase prices" for long distances, the animals are in such an emaciated condition that they only bring low prices.

ASSOCIATION HAS SURPLUS
Williamsburg, Va.—(UP)—The Yorktown Sesquicentennial Association, Inc., has a surplus of about $20,000 in its treasury, something unusual for celebration commissions. The surplus may be used for one of two things proposed; for annual celebrations at Yorktown in the future, or as a nucleus for a fund with which to erect a memorial hall at Yorktown, which involves $1,000,000 to be raised by the 13 original states.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

(By The United Press)
Washington, Dec. 18 —(UP)— It makes you think about making this a better world, this being a grandparent, says "Grandma" Florence P. Kahn, Congresswoman from California.

"Lots of times one says to himself," says Mrs. Kahn, "what do I care about this being a better world? But if you have some grandchildren, you have to stop and think. They'll be here."

Mrs. Kahn became a grandmother this autumn with the birth of Julius Kahn, 3rd, who carries on the name of her husband, the World War chairman of the Military Affairs committee. Mrs. Kahn is now on that committee.

Mrs. Kahn had a birthday last month herself. She is 63, although she doesn't list her age in the Congressional Directory. She is active and congenitally cheerful, and notices all sorts of things.

One of her discoveries is that the Congresswoman this session go by three. Three of the six are Republicans and three are Democrats, three are dyes and three are anti-prohibitionists, three are grandmothers, and three are not.

The other two grandmothers, Ruth Baker Pratt of New York and Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida, became grandmothers again in blessed events of the last summer, which makes three calls by the "stork" in a single year.

The three outspoken prohibitionists are two of the grandmothers, Mrs. Kahn and Mrs. Pratt, and Mary T. Norton of New Jersey.

Effie Wingo of Arkansas, Mrs. Norton and Mrs. Owen are the three Democrats. Mrs. Kahn, Mrs. Pratt and Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts are the Republicans.

But to return to Mrs. Kahn's little grandson. Mrs. Kahn's mother, a member of the San Francisco Board of Education, remembers seeing her own great-grandmother who was born in 1790 or before, and she now sees her great-grandson, who he lives to be 60, will live until 1890—a span of two centuries of life included in the acquaintances of that one person.

Mrs. Kahn's friends say that in private she is one of the most vigorous commentators on the doings of Capitol Hill, very realistic and having a grand time always.

She always wears black, but it doesn't dampen her spirit.

Lawrence Tibbett, opera and concert singer, gave a concert here. It was largely attended and he was roundly applauded.

"I love to sing in Washington," said Tibbett, always gracious.

"Oh, do you?" gushed a matron. "And Mr. Tibbett, do tell me, where do you like to sing best?"

"In the bathtub," answered Mr. Tibbett.

BABY TEETH

The neglect of the milk teeth, or, as they are sometimes called, baby teeth, is still very widespread.

Parents reason that since they are only temporary teeth, and the teeth to be shed, there is little use in preserving them.

This is faulty reasoning, based on an inadequate appreciation of the role of the temporary teeth. Their value to the growing child must be self evident.

The teeth, at all ages above infancy are essential for the proper preparation of food for digestion. Solid food must be mechanically broken up for efficient and easy digestion by the juices of the digestive tract.

But, over and above this service the temporary teeth are of value in influencing the proper development of the permanent teeth.

The temporary teeth should be retained until they fall out naturally.

Their presence and use in chewing stimulates the proper development of the jaw bones. This in turn affects the head and face structure in its entirety.

The massaging influence resulting from the use of the temporary teeth also has a beneficial effect on the growth of the permanent teeth, which are budding underneath.

The temporary teeth serve also as space reserves for the permanent teeth, and prevent in a measure, their growing in crookedly.

When the milk teeth are preserved for their normal length of time the permanent teeth tend to grow in an even height.

If a lower tooth, say, is not opposed by an upper tooth, this having been extracted, or lost by decay, the lower tooth will tend to grow taller than the rest.

Also one should not mistake the sixth year molar for a temporary tooth. These are the last in the row of teeth found in the child's jaw.

Every effort should be made to preserve this tooth, for it is a key-stone to the dental arch.

Tomorrow—Pyloric Stenosis.

Former G. O. P. Conventions in Chicago Recalled

By RAY BLACK

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Dec. 18 —(UP)— Warriors dominated the scene in Crocker's opera house when the Republican National Convention that was to nominate Ulysses S. Grant, convened on May 20, 1868.

That tenseness in the political atmosphere prevalent after the World War and still noticeable as the Republicans await their convention here next summer was felt everywhere in '68. Andrew Johnson's troubled administration had just escaped ending in the fiasco of impeachment. The south still rumbled with reconstruction discontent.

Grant's name had been on tongue tip for months as the logical man. He was a soldier, a general, the man who saved the Union. Behind him was a loyal army, largely gone back to plow and anvil and pen, and a grateful north.

On the stage at the opera house the May noonday when the convention opened were leaders from the Federal Army and generals among the delegates were the men who held the balance of power.

Big, loose-framed Jesse R. Grant, holding his falling eyes behind dark glasses, was there. He was Grant's father. Other military men who took a major part in the convention activity were Carl Schurz of Missouri, the immigrant from Germany who became Major General in the Union Army, and General J. R. Hawley of Connecticut, elected president of the convention, who had been one of the first volunteers from his state and rose to Brigadier General.

A delegation from the soldiers' and sailors' convention was received by General Cochrane of New York, General Schurz, General T. Dodge of Iowa, and General Swett of Illinois.

Another delegate who was to become famous in political annals was Chauncey M. Depew of New York. Governor Brown of Georgia broke the ice between the north and the south somewhat when he announced, "I came here as a reconstructed Rebel."

Repeated attempt were made to nominate Grant by acclamation before committees could report. They were parried until General John A. Logan of Illinois nominated the Illinois soldier who became Commander in Chief of the Union army. General Logan said:

"In the name of the loyal citizens soldiers and sailors of this great republic of the United States of America, in the name of loyalty, and liberty, of humanity, of justice, in the name of the National Union Republican party, I nominate for the Chief Magistracy of this nation, Ulysses S. Grant."

The massed tiers of spectators rose, cheering and waving handkerchiefs. The band played "Hail to the Chief."

The roll call was taken. When it came the turn of the Connecticut delegation, the response was: "Mr. President, Connecticut unconditionally surrenders her 12 votes for U. S. Grant."

The convention had 650 votes to give. Grant got them all on the first roll call.

Cheering went on for several minutes. A white dove, released as a symbol of peace restored to the nation, fluttered above the heads of the crowd.

A full length picture of Grant, painted on a backdrop, was let down on the stage. Across it was painted in large letters, "Match him if you can."

Cities Subject for Farm Speech

"Cities are out of date" is the subject which Wheeler McMillen, associate editor of Country Home, has chosen for his message in the National Farm and Home Hour on Monday.

McMillen is a nationally famous writer on agricultural and other subjects. One of his books, "Too Many Farmers," is a keen analysis of the economic problems facing American agriculture.

He will appear as guest speaker in the Farm and Home Hour which is broadcast at 11:30 A. M. to 12:30 P. M., CST, over an NBC-WJZ network.

Fishing Banks Have Frozen Assets, Too!

Just save this picture to look at when you want to get cool next summer. Behind that coating of ice are the rigging and masts of the fishing schooner Magellan, as she appeared on returning to port at South Boston, Mass., the other day, after a trip to the fishing banks. The ice is sometimes chipped off for home use!

"Police" Dog Lives Up to Name

Detectives had to make friends with this police dog before they could get near enough to a suspected gang stronghold in Newark, N. J., to find evidence that would justify a raid. Won over by kindness, the dog who deserted his gangster-masters is seen here with one of the raiding officers after a nine-room house had been discovered to hold thousands of dollars in loot, a large quantity of explosives, and an elaborate crime laboratory and workshop.

SPORT SLANTS

The trading of Burleigh Grimes up the river means just exactly what it indicates: first, that sentiment has nothing to do with the business of producing major league baseball winners; second, that the Cardinals expect at least one of their new choin-store stars, probably Dizzy Dean or Ray Starr, to become a pitching regular in 1932.

There will never be a smarter or gamier pitcher than Old Burleigh who had a great deal to do, as you know, with the discomfiture of the Athletics in the last world's series.

But, barring the rubber arm of Old Jack Quinn, major league pitching wings have their limits. Grimes can no longer work effectively without close to a full week's rest between games. Probably he has no more than one more regular season of duty duty in his system, but he can do Rogers Hornsby's ambitious Cubs a lot of good next year.

Grimes was considered quite seriously as the successor to Wilbert Robinson as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Before the baton of leadership finally was handed to Max Carey.

Baseball men have a high regard for Burleigh's sagacity. He has now made almost a complete circuit of the National League and knows what it is all about. He is a truculent party, on the diamond, but the game never will be the same without a few leaders of this type.

Grimes, with the Cubs and given a chance to get into another world's series, might play a decisive pitching role again, providing Root, Malone, Smith and Bush can meet Hornsby's expectations.

Miller Booster Gross Warm "What," asks the Alumni secretary of the Purdue Alumni Association, Inc., of West Lafayette, Ind., "does it take to make the A. P. All-America team?" For which starting point he goes on to discuss the case of Miller, Purdue's very fine center.

"Miller against Wisconsin outplayed the three centers the Badgers put against him and in the last three quarters not a first down was made by Wisconsin. At Chicago he made one-half of the tackles. Indiana, Iowa and Northwestern only made four first downs through the Purdue line altogether. It was Miller backing up the Purdue line on defense that made this possible. Jones of Indiana, Sansen of Iowa,

Olson and Renner of Northwestern averaged less than one yard against him.

"We have it on good Notre Dame authority that Yarr was the weakest spot in Notre Dame's line, while Miller was not only a tiger on defense but offense as well. Against Northwestern he played the greatest game I have ever seen a center play. For three years this lad has never been outplayed and it has always been necessary for Purdue's opponents to play two or three men against him."

Miller no doubt was all that his admirers claimed of him. But the ballots decided the 1931 A. P. consensus eleven and on this basis the ranking of the centers was: Yarr, of Notre Dame, Daugherty, of Pittsburgh, Morrison, of Michigan, McDuffee of Columbia and Miller of Purdue. The Big Ten all-star selections also ranked Morrison a notch ahead of Miller.

THREE KINDS of LOVE

BY KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

© 1931, by Doubleday, Doran and Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANNE, CECILY and MARY-FRANCES FENWICK live with their grandparents, once wealthy, now so impoverished that Anne and Cecily's earnings support the household. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandparents are known respectively as "ROSA LIE" and "GRAND" and they insist on keeping up pretenses of their former wealth.

Anne, 28, and Cecily, 22, do secretarial work and Mary-Frances, 15, is still in school. When the story opens Anne has been engaged to PHILIP ECKHARD, young lawyer, for eight years.

Cecily brings BARRY McKEEL home to dinner. It is evident that she is falling in love with him. Mary-Frances has a telephone call from her friend, ERMINTRUDE, who is excited about the arrival of an actor known as EARL DE ARMOUNT. The two girls make plans to meet him. Phil comes to see Anne. He is late and rather irritable. When he leaves he suggests to kiss Anne.

Next afternoon Mary-Frances and Ermintrude go down town, hoping to meet the ArmoUNT.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

ERMINTRUDE, plumper and less favored with positive prettiness than was Mary-Frances, and hence her satellite, received the accusation at least indifferently. Since nine o'clock the previous evening, omitting only the few grudging hours given to sleep towards dawn, and the stupid interval spent in the high-school classrooms, Mary-Frances had talked unceasingly of her approaching romance. That she herself was slightly bored with the affair Ermintrude would not have admitted. That she was fearful of proceeding further into it Ermintrude had been admitting repeatedly and more and more urgently for 18 hours.

"Yes," said Mary-Frances, "that is the trouble with you, Ermintrude."

"What is?" asked Ermintrude.

"That you're like my sisters, Anne and Cecily. I told you. They think any old thing like their jobs, or keeping that old house of ours for Grand and Rosalie, or my education, even, is more important than love."

"Everybody says," contributed Ermintrude, "that your sisters are awfully good girls."

"Well," said Mary-Frances, as if the discussion had been one of racial characteristics and Ermintrude had remarked that Anne and Cecily were white, "of course they're good. Why shouldn't they be good?"

"Anyway," said Ermintrude, "I don't think you'd better, Mary-Frances. I don't, honestly."

This tendency on the part of her friend for taking long backward conversational leaps instead of advancing in order had ever been, for Mary-Frances, a trying tendency.

At the moment, it was more exasperating than usual, because Ermintrude knew, since she had been thoroughly informed, that Mary-Frances's whole life's happiness depended upon successfully carrying through this coming venture "Ermintrude Hill," said Mary-Frances, "sometimes you make me just sick and disgusted."

"Last night," said Ermintrude, resuming her habits, retrograde, "you said yourself that there wasn't another girl in M. H. S. who you'd talk to like you did me about life and living and everything."

"Last night," Mary-Frances conceded, "you were all right. You understood about ideals, and the Importance of love and everything. I don't know what's got into you today. I guess you just don't care about my life's happiness being fulfilled nor anything."

"I do too," said Ermintrude. "But just the same I don't think you should go and pick up strange men on the street."

"That's nice, isn't it?" reproved Mary-Frances bitterly. "And it was you your own self, over the phone last night, that said all about soul crying to soul and everything."

"Well," Ermintrude gloomily admitted, "maybe I did. But just the same, if Mother and Daddy should find out that I picked up a strange man on the street they'd kill me—that's all."

"I suppose," said Mary-Frances, spurningly matching Ermintrude's gloom, "that you expect to get a long ways with your stage career, and receive ovations and every thing, without a bit of bravery. Not even a teeny bit of bravery."

"Today, during algebra," said Ermintrude, "I kind of got to thinking about Peter, and I just almost decided to give up the stage for a career."

If Ermintrude, with this thin wedge, had hoped to open a discussion of her own affairs, her hopes were unavailing. Rosy-meade, by this time, had been left behind, and the girls were coming down a small hill covered with the lush, heady greens of Oregon's uncutivated shrubbery. At the foot of the hill a service station sprouted, shining red and white in the sun. Mary-Frances clutched Ermintrude's arm. "There!" she said. "I'll stop in there and fix up. They have a ladies' rest room. It will be better than going on down to Palmer's, like we'd planned."

"I don't hardly think they'll let you," Ermintrude objected. "Without a car or anything."

"They'd just better try to stop me," threatened Mary-Frances. She was a female thing, questing for love and beauty. Her tiny nostrils dilated slightly.

THE attendant at the service station, pleasantly named Albert Jolly and as British as "Zed," had noticed two girls, whom he might have described as sweetly comely, approach and cross his graveled corner. He had noticed them, and busy with his pumps and his oil cans, he had promptly forgotten them. He was vaguely startled, 15 minutes later, when he saw the two young persons again in his graveled corner.

Albert was at an age when all youth looked much and beautifully alike to him. Still, he had retained an impression that the blue little lady was a bit more agreeable to the eye than was the stockier brown little lady. He looked again at the blue little lady, and his eyes opened wide, and his jaw went down a trifle, and murmuring and distinctly troubled he returned to his pumps and oil cans.

Mary-Frances had resolved that, for once in her life, she was going to look decent. The lipstick, which had done double duty for cheeks and lips, had been purloined from Cecily, as had the clown-white powder, undimmed by the tan and the pink powders with which Cecily carefully blended it.

There could be no doubt as to the altered appearance of Mary-Frances. Ermintrude, looking again at her friend as they left the gravel and gained the sidewalk, declared, "You're a perfectly ravishing beauty, Mary-Frances, darling. And, my, but you look old! Honest, no fooling, you look almost—jaded." Which was delivered as high homage, and which was so received.

The girls went on, past Rosy-meade's Development and Realty Company, down Tanner street, past like Crombley's New and Second-Hand Furniture Company, past the Sans Souci Apartments, past the post showing the sign, "Fenwick avenue," and if the old street, dappled with sunshine through its spreading locust trees, attempted enticements or invitations they were neither seen nor heard.

A rounded corner brought Mary-Frances and Ermintrude to Mrs. Van Slyke's Delicatessen Shop, and automatically they stopped before its windows: fascinating salads, golden with mayonnaise; bowls of creamy cottage cheese; cakes towering luscious layers of coconut and chocolate; hams, cut to pink's own perfections; olives oily green, and pungent dill pickles, and pies, and little rolls—all only a glass window away at four o'clock on a warm spring hungry afternoon.

"I'm starved," stated Ermintrude. "I'm just naturally starved. Let's hurry right back to our house and get something to eat. We went to your house yesterday."

Mary-Frances, too, was torn by the teeth of hunger, but path and purpose lay clear before her, and, though she turned from the window with a heart-heavy sigh, she took Ermintrude's arm and pulled it and said, "Oh, for pity's sake! Come on, can't you?"

Ermintrude's opposition, which, possibly because of the amazing success attending the venture for beauty, had been constrained since the girls had left the service station, now gushed forth, surcharged with feeling.

"Yes, but, Mary-Frances Fenwick, I don't think you ought to. I think you'd lots better give it all up right now and go to a college career."

ANN, at her desk in the office of the Redfern Plumbing and Heating Company, looked again at the clock on the wall. Twenty-five minutes past four, and Phil had not telephoned to her all day long. Usually, at least, when things went wrong in the evening, Phil telephoned to her early the next day—not to make love: Phil did not approve of love-making over the telephone—but to reassure her, to let her know that he was not angry, to make an engagement for the evening. It was mean of him not to telephone today. She would have called him gladly, but Phil thought it not quite nice for girls to telephone to men. It was mean of him. Getting a number was so easy. Waiting for a message—waiting for anything was hard.

Mid-Winter Golf Tournament Is On

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 18—(AP)—Proving ground for the "balloon" golf ball last season, the Brookside Country Club's par of 71 will be bombarded today by the new heavier pellet in its first tournament appearing when the professional army opens its Southern California mid-winter campaign with the Pasadena $4,000 open.

The field of 180 starting the three day affair with a round of 18 holes includes five national champions.

Billy Burke, national open champion, and Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y., National P. G. A. titleholder, lead the Yankee contingent. Aubrey Cooper, although a Britisher, holds the French open crown. R. Asami is the Japanese pro champion and Walter Hagen of Detroit is Canadian open titleholder.

Tony Manero of Elmford, N. Y., who successfully mastered the light-

BORAH CONTINUES PERSONAL FIGHT FOR RECOGNITION

Insists that United States Should Get Right With Russians

The most persistent advocate in Congress of recognition of Russia is Senator Borah, Repn., Idaho. Many do not understand Borah's reasons for those persistent one-man campaigns. In an interview with the United Press, he has stated his reasons for the annual resolution he introduces.)

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Copyright, 1931, by The United Press
Washington, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Chairman William E. Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, who has renewed in the 72nd Congress his plea for recognition of Soviet Russia, told the United Press that world economic sanity and solidarity can not be obtained until the Russian problem is settled.

He predicted that failure to adjust Russian-American relations would be a factor working at Geneva this winter to defeat the disarmament conference projected under League of Nations influences.

Borah believes that if for none other than selfish reasons of trade, the United States should recognize the Soviet Union. He has again introduced in the Senate a resolution favoring recognition. But with a special year coming on there is scant prospect that it will even reach the Senate floor for debate. "I introduced this resolution," Borah said, "because I want in every way I can to keep the subject alive. I would like to see done everything possible to capture the vast Russian trade that is inherent in a great nation of 160,000,000 people. It is the greatest undeveloped market we have, greater even in its immediate potentialities than China."

"And in my judgment, it is entirely impossible to have anything in the nature of real disarmament until the Russian problem is settled. It is a country with national resources, making it potentially the wealthiest in the world. There is a standing army of 600,000 men. There can be no real disarmament until there is the most amicable relationship between the Soviet Russian government and all other countries."

"How can you straighten out the European situation," Borah continued, "with one sixth of the world's surface estranged? It is true that European nations have recognized Soviet Russia but you can't get far toward a proper basis of international relations until the United States extends recognition."

"In the meantime, the unsolved Russian question will be a factor working toward failure of the Geneva disarmament conference."

Borah is contemptuous of the argument that unpaid debts created a real basis for the state Department's Russian attitude.

"The Czarist and Kerensky debts at the end of the war," he said, "aggregated $187,000,000. That sum has been increased by accumulating interest. But so far as those debts are concerned, they could be adjusted any day on far more favorable terms than we adjusted the debts owed us by other nations."

THIS SANTA CLAUS' "SLEIGH" IS A SHIP!

Maine Pastor Is Aquatic St. Nick Who Spreads Christmas Cheer Among Lonely Folk In Isolated Coastal Spots

By ALFRED ALDEN
(Written for NEA Service)
Bar Harbor, Me.—The sea-going Santa Claus of this rugged Maine coast is sorting his gifts and labeling big bundles of food and clothing preparatory to chugging away on his chilly, hazardous round of lonely islands and isolated main land homes.

The Rev. Orville J. Gupitil, pastor of the Main Seal Coast Missionary Society, with headquarters here, is a Santa Claus in oil-skins. But his vehicle is as welcome a sight—and nearly as capacious—as any legendary sleigh.

Eagerly Awaited
The mission has a Christmas department, and all through the year it accumulates gifts for distribution throughout the remote places of the coastal area. This has been a hard season for the fisher folk, whose catches have brought unprecedentedly low prices. Some families, in fact, are destitute. But all will be remembered and visited by the mission's motor cruiser, the Sunbeam.

The Reverend Gupitil, who knows the needs of his people, distributes the gifts. Those most in need of money or food will get it. At least 500 adults will receive substantial presents, and some 2000 children are on his Christmas list. About 50 Coast Guard and lighthouse stations also will be visited. Several cruises of the Sunbeam will be necessary to transport all this holiday cheer.

It was 26 years ago that the unique missionary society was established, to unite the men and women living on the isolated islands and mainland points of the Maine coast "in a bond of Christian brotherhood, regardless of race, creed or religious denomination." The Rev. Henry Van Dyke, of New York and Bar Harbor, long was the society's active president and even now acts in an honorary capacity.

The watery parish extends from the St. Croix river on the east to the Kennebec river on the west.

A Boat Serves
The Sunbeam is the ultimate means of all the mission's accomplishments. It is only 80 feet long, powered by a Diesel engine and has a cruising radius of 970 miles.

"She gives a tow to the fisherman whose engine is stalled," said the Rev. Gupitil. "She transports the sick to the mainland hospitals. She carries the dead to their last resting place."

ing place. She responds to distress signals from any point and brings relief. She carries hundreds of people to conferences and transports doctors and nurses in any wind or weather if navigation is humanly possible.

"No wonder the coast folk call the Sunbeam 'God's Yacht!'" She is the fifth and largest craft to be built for the mission, and on her the pastor and his staff spend most of their time. There are staterooms with running water, and a comfortable salon with chairs and tables, books and charts for meetings held on board.

In the after cabin is a small operating room. Surgeons have performed numerous emergency operations in those surroundings, and countless minor mishaps have been cared for there by the registered nurses who accompany the boat.

Ready to Bring Cheer
Tons of necessities, as well as toys and useful gifts, are ready now for loading on the Sunbeam, and the Kris Kingle of the Coast is busy checking and re-checking his lists to be sure that no one has been forgotten.

When winter seas rage, north-easters howl, harbors freeze and the mercury falls below the zero mark, navigating the Sunbeam along the treacherous coast is a brave man's job. At the same time, however, it is a great pleasure jaunt to the salty Santa who brings Christmas each year to the isolated and forgotten.

was dismissed Sunday from the hospital and has gone to Chicago to spend some time in the home of his son, Merline McConkey.

This College Dean is Memory Marvel And Remembers Everything About 500 Students in His Care

By NEA Service—

San Jose — "No, Wilbur, you can not get away today. You were absent from assembly on the afternoon of November 19, about a month ago. You must be penalized by attending today."

Wilbur was amazed. He had been absent. He had attended a football game. But he couldn't understand how Father William C. Gianera, S. J. Dean of studies at Santa Clara University, had found that out. Five or six hundred students went to each assembly. There was no roll call—no way, apparently, of determining who was there and who was not.

But then Wilbur inquired about Father Gianera and began to learn things. He learned Father Gianera remembered all things he saw and he saw just about everything that happened on the campus.

Father Gianera doesn't call roll, for instance. He remains casually at the entrance of the auditorium and, by some strange sixth sense, remembers each student as he enters and—more important—remembers the ones who do not enter.

The priest's entire year is one of varied mental feats—wonderful to the observer, a part of the day's work to Father Gianera. He has been in colleges all his life, he says, and has taught for 30 years.

The Dean of Studies also seems to remember everything about the students. He can, without hesitation, give a detailed account of each student's life at school—his aptness in some studies, his ability in sports, his peculiarities, his leanings, and the profession into which he aspires after graduation.

To the students and to Father Gianera's colleagues, his singularity

becomes quite usual after a time. fills the same place in their lives as an adding machine, or a corps of bookkeepers, or any modern wonder might.

It is surprising to visitors, who have known the college well and who have known it slightly, to have Father Gianera call them by name when they haven't been on the campus for two or three years.

Wants Prohibition Issue Laid Aside

Washington, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Representative Hutton W. Summers, the Texas who now heads the House Judiciary committee, thinks prohibition legislation shelved until economic questions have been handled. His committee must pass upon all judicial measures, among them amendments to the bankruptcy laws, anti-trust laws and the numerous proposals for modification or repeal of prohibition.

Summers today declared himself in favor of "a truce on the liquor question until we shall have done our best untidily and with concentrated purpose to relieve the economic distress of the people."

Such a course from Congress, he said, "the common sense of the country will approve."
